

National University of Computer and Emerging Sciences

Lahore Campus

Expository Writing (SS1014)Final ExamDate: 19th May 2026Total Time (Hrs.): 3:00*Course Instructor(s)*Total Marks: 75

Dr. Kalsoom Jahan

Total Questions: 4

Dr. Saadia Rasheed

Dr. Sara Khan

Mr. Razm ul Zafar

Ms. Falaknaz Zia

Ms. Nokhaiz Zahra

Ms. Zakia Naeem

Roll No

Section

Student Signature

Do not write below this line

Attempt all the questions on the answer sheets in sequence.CLO 2: To restate and write clear, structured academic responses.Q1: Paraphrase the given paragraph and provide an in-text citation too.[15 Marks]*Your Paraphrased Paragraph Should Contain:

- Main Idea
- Relevant Details
- Change of Word/Sentence order and structure
- Change of Active/Passive Voice
- Reference

Paraphrase the paragraph given below.The Quiet Burden of Pretended Helplessness

(Some people avoid responsibility not through open refusal, but through a quieter performance of confusion and uncertainty.) (Instructions are forgotten, simple tasks become strangely difficult, and repeated explanations fade into the same uncertain expressions.) (Over time, others begin carrying the burden themselves, not because they were meant to, but because exhaustion feels easier than endless repetition.) (In workplaces, homes, and relationships, this behaviour gradually shifts emotional and practical labour onto the more patient person, turning communication into a cycle of reminders, clarifications, and silent frustration.) (What makes it difficult to confront is its subtlety; it rarely appears aggressive enough to openly accuse, yet it steadily drains energy and accountability from those around it.) (Helplessness becomes protection, while hesitation quietly transforms into escape from responsibility.) (The person forced to compensate often begins questioning their own reactions, wondering whether they are being unfair or overly demanding.) (Still, not every mistake is deliberate and not every confusion hides manipulation.) (The challenge lies in recognizing patterns while maintaining compassion, clarity, and firm boundaries without allowing frustration to become cruelty.)

Source: Williams, R. T. (2021). Strategic Helplessness and the Psychology of Avoidance. In Communication, Manipulation, and Modern Relationships (pp. 112–114). Oxford University Press.

CLO 2: To restate and write clear, structured academic responses.

Q2: Critically read the excerpt given below and answer the questions that follow. [10 Marks]

Your Answers Should Contain:

- Restate the Question
- State Your Main Point
- Support with Evidence
- Explain Your Evidence
- Link Back to the Question

Note: Each answer should be written in 60-70 words.

Read the excerpt given below to answer the questions that follow.

Independence

Freedom is one of the deepest human desires, yet it is often threatened by the urge to dominate and control others. Across history, power has repeatedly been used to silence voices, limit choices, and strip individuals of dignity. War reveals this reality in its most brutal form, turning human beings into victims of fear, violence, and helplessness. However, domination does not exist only on battlefields. It quietly enters homes, workplaces, and societies whenever one person seeks authority at the expense of another's independence. Communities are divided when cultures attempt to suppress languages, beliefs, and identities that do not conform to accepted norms. Such acts create bitterness because the human spirit naturally resists confinement and longs for self-expression. In personal relationships, the same struggle for control often appears in subtle yet damaging ways. An overprotective parent may deny a child the freedom to grow independently, while a controlling partner may mistake possession for love. In professional spaces, authority can become a tool for silencing concerns and maintaining superiority rather than encouraging cooperation. Whenever power is used to dominate rather than uplift, relationships begin to weaken under the weight of resentment and emotional distance. Yet power need not always destroy. It can also become a source of strength, compassion, and connection when used to empower others rather than control them. Respecting another person's freedom allows trust to flourish and preserves the dignity that every individual seeks. Human relationships become healthier when authority is guided by understanding rather than fear. In this way, the true value of power lies not in the ability to control others, but in the ability to help them grow freely and meaningfully.

Source: Hicks, D. (2020). Independence. In A. Rosa & P. Eschholz (Eds.), Model for Writers (12th ed., pp. 145–152). Bedford/St. Martin's.

Q1. Using the phrase “silence voices, limit choices”, how does the text present the use of power in society and relationships? Provide evidence from the text. In your opinion, what does this suggest about whether power is used to control or empower individuals today? Explain your answer. [5 Marks]

Q2. Drawing on the idea “resists confinement”, how does the text portray human desire for independence? Provide evidence from the text. In your opinion, can true independence exist in relationships without some form of control? Explain your answer. [5 Marks]

National University of Computer and Emerging Sciences Lahore Campus

CLO 3: Express ideas with logical and well-supported arguments

Q3. Read the advertisement given below and write 5-paragraph Personal Statement in 350-400 words. [25 Marks]

Note: Use 'Anecdote' as a Reader's Hook. Underline your Thesis Statement.

Read the advertisement given below.

FUTURETECH
INNOVATION FELLOWSHIP

SHAPE IDEAS.
LEAD THE FUTURE.
INNOVATE FOR IMPACT.

Join the FutureTech Innovation Fellowship

Are you ready to become a leader of tomorrow and create solutions for real-world challenges? The FutureTech Innovation Fellowship is inviting talented and creative students from across Pakistan to participate in a fully funded leadership and technology program. Selected participants will explore digital innovation, entrepreneurship, artificial intelligence, and sustainable problem-solving through interactive workshops and team-based projects guided by industry experts.

WHO CAN APPLY?

- Students aged 16–20 with an interest in technology, creativity, and leadership
- Strong communication and critical thinking skills
- Passion for innovation, collaboration, and social impact

WHAT YOU'LL EXPERIENCE:

- Hands-on innovation and design-thinking activities
- Workshops on AI, digital media, and entrepreneurship
- Team challenges and leadership development sessions
- Mentorship from professionals and innovators

ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA:

- ✓ Strong analytical and problem-solving skills
- ✓ Creative and innovative thinking
- ✓ Effective communication and presentation abilities
- ✓ Leadership through activities, clubs, or community work
- ✓ Teamwork and responsibility management
- ✓ Interest in technology, AI, and innovation
- ✓ Critical thinking and adaptability
- ✓ Motivation for social impact and sustainability
- ✓ Initiative, self-discipline, and personal growth
- ✓ Clear future academic and career goals

APPLICATION DEADLINE:
JUNE 10, 2026

SCAN TO APPLY OR VISIT:
www.futuretech.org.pk

INNOVATE TODAY. INSPIRE TOMORROW.
BE THE CHANGE.

Source: National Vocational and Technical Training Commission (NAVTTTC)
<https://navttc.gov.pk/initiatives/innovation-and-technology>

Your Introductory Paragraph should include:

- Reader's Hook (Anecdote)
- Lead-in
- 3-Point Thesis Statement: Mention your:
 - academic achievement,
 - personal/leadership experience,
 - future goals.
- Transitional Hook
- 3 Body paragraphs
 - Topic sentence
 - 2 Major details
 - 1-2 minor supporting details
 - Transitional hook (in body paragraphs 1 & 2)
- Concluding paragraph

enhance yourself

CLO 3: Express ideas with logical and well-supported arguments

Q4. Write an Argumentative Essay in 350-400 words on the Topic:

[25 Marks]

"Digital anonymity encourages freedom of expression."

Choose your stance either in favour of or against the given topic and write an argumentative essay by adhering to the guidelines provided below.

Note: Use 'Rhetorical Question' as a Reader's Hook. Underline your Thesis Statement

Use the following excerpt to generate ideas and ensure that you do not copy any text from it.

Behind glowing screens and carefully chosen usernames, people enter a world where identity often becomes fluid and uncertain. In these digital spaces, words travel quickly, thoughts are shared instantly, and conversations unfold between strangers who may never meet beyond the boundaries of a screen. Freed from the visibility of everyday life, many individuals speak with a confidence they might never possess in ordinary social situations. For some, anonymity becomes a shelter, a quiet place where fears, opinions, and private struggles can be expressed without the weight of judgment. Hidden identities may allow vulnerable voices to emerge, especially when society itself feels unwelcoming or restrictive. Yet distance can also alter the nature of human interaction. The absence of a visible face or immediate emotional response sometimes weakens the sense of restraint that guides communication in the physical world. A disagreement may slowly transform into mockery, and criticism may become cruelty disguised as entertainment. In such moments, the screen creates an invisible barrier between action and consequence, allowing words to lose their human weight. What begins as freedom of expression may gradually drift toward hostility, misunderstanding, or emotional harm. Still, anonymity cannot be reduced to a single truth. It exists in a complicated space between liberation and irresponsibility, protection and concealment. The same hidden identity that offers comfort to one person may provide another with the confidence to wound others without fear. Digital spaces, therefore, mirror the contradictions of human nature itself: the desire to be heard, the fear of being judged, the need for freedom, and the temptation to misuse it. As online life becomes increasingly woven into everyday existence, questions surrounding identity and accountability continue to grow more significant. Whether anonymity ultimately strengthens or weakens human connection remains uncertain, perhaps resting not in technology itself but in the choices, people make while using it.

Source: Zhuo, J. (2021). Where Anonymity Breeds Contempt. In A. Rosa & P. Eschholz (Eds.), Models for Writers (14th ed., pp. 95–98). Bedford/St. Martin's.

Your Introductory Paragraph should contain:

➤ Introductory Paragraph

- Reader's Hook (Rhetorical Question)
- Context/Background sentence(s)
- Three-point thesis statement
- Transitional Hook
- 3 Body paragraphs (1 Counterargument Paragraph and 2 Supporting Argument Paragraphs)
 - Topic sentence
 - 2 Major details
 - 1-2 minor supporting details
 - Transitional hook (in body paragraphs 1& 2)

➤ Concluding paragraph
